

A technical diagram of a rear axle assembly. It shows a central differential housing with two axle tubes extending outwards. Each axle tube has a knuckle at the end. A callout box with the number '191' points to a small circular component, likely a pin or bush, located near the differential housing.

